AOAC INTERNATIONAL

Professionals Dedicated to Analytical Excellence

About AOAC's Individual Membership

AOAC INTERNATIONAL is a professional scientific association dedicated to the validation of analytical methods and quality laboratory management. Today AOAC's membership numbers reach nearly 3,000 members from more than 90 countries, working in industry, government and academia. These individuals are laboratory managers, analytical chemists, microbiologists, toxicologists, forensic scientists, management executives and much more. Membership and active participation in AOAC INTERNATIONAL is an opportunity for these professionals to demonstrate their dedication to analytical excellence.

Making the Most of Your Individual Membership

Sections

AOAC Sections are located worldwide. They provide opportunities for participants to share information, build professional contacts, expand leadership skills and gain practical management experience.

Volunteer Opportunities

Members of AOAC are encouraged to actively participate in the Association by taking advantage of the many volunteer opportunities available. Members can take leadership roles and contribute their time and talents in a number of areas from membership and professional development to technical committees and method validation programs.
